

Taking the sting out of things – quick help for insect bites

Ulm, 28 June 2022 – Summer is finally here, but this also means that prime time for insects has begun. Mosquitoes, horseflies and wasps are often unwelcome guests when swimming, at barbecues or when hiking. Stings and bites from these little pests are difficult to avoid using natural means and can have unpleasant consequences, such as itching and swelling on the skin. Beurer insect bite healers provide gentle, medication-free relief. In addition to the familiar BR 60, the Ulm-based health specialist now has two new devices in its medical product range: the compact BR 10, for use when on the go, and the BR 90, which features an optional light.

Insect bites can be irritating and can usually be felt for days afterwards. With the BR 10, BR 60 and BR 90 Insect Bite Healers, symptoms can be resolved more quickly. To use the device, place the fast-heating, ceramic hot plate directly on the affected area immediately after the bite. The targeted application of heat can relieve itching or swelling; it is often noted that the area heals more comfortably. As the insect bite healers do not have any chemical additives, they are also suitable for use by pregnant women.

The BR 10 Insect Bite Healer is the perfect companion for outdoor activities due to its extra-small, compact design. It can easily be attached to a backpack or belt loop using the practical carabiner hook, so it is always close at hand when a sting or bite occurs. The 3-second programme can relieve itching or swelling, even on sensitive skin.

The two BR 60 and BR 90 Insect Bite Healers offer two programmes with different heat durations. For first-time use or for sensitive skin, an application time of 3 seconds is recommended. For regular use, 6 seconds is
